WHAT'S UP WITH CLASS?!

15 MAY 2019

9:30 | 18:00

Reclaiming the conversation about class.

Wheelchair Accessible
English-Deutsch
Childcare

Not: Race vs. Class

But rather: Race and Class!

We want to reclaim the conversation about class because any conversation about class is incomplete unless we also talk about race, gender, disability, sexual orientation, national and migration status.

The aim of this all-day event is to open up a space for exchange in order to approach class/classism from an intersectional perspective.

In various inputs, workshops and discussion rounds, a number of topics will be broached, topics that deal with the intertwining of race and class as well as further categories of discrimination and oppression. The thematic focal points will be:

- ★ The link between colonialism, racism and capitalism
- ★ Care work
- ★ Reproductive justice
- ★ Public space

All topics deal in particular with questions of participation, exclusion and inclusion as well as barriers to access in the context of race and class.

Our aim is explicitly to take ordinary conversations about classism and include categories like race and migration. Our aim is to illustrate how race and class are interwoven as social categories in a wide variety of areas - on an institutional, structural as well as everyday level ,

This event is a cooperation between xart splitta, the Center for Intersectional Justice (CIJ) and the Bildungswerk of the Heinrich Böll Foundation and will be held together with the Nachbarschaftshaus Urbanstrasse (NHU). It is part of the Shared Spaces project of the Heinrich Böll Foundation.

Film Screening of “Remue-Ménage Dans La Sous-Traitance” (Big Sweep-up in Subcontracting)

March 2002, Paris. Cleaners doing subcontracted work in Accor hotels go on strike. Most of the strikers are women with West African origins and are fighting for their rights for the first time in their life. Shot over a 4 year period, the film outlines different struggles where with few resources but a will, collectively organized individuals disrupt the law of submissiveness prevailing in the world of work, particularly in subcontracted work.

Within the framework of this event, there is a possibility that photos, sound and video recordings will be made for publishing by the organisers.
